VOICE OF THE BRIGHAM YOUNG UNIVERSITY COMMUNITY

Vol 9 No. 19 | Thursday, Oct. 18, 1956 | Provo, Utah

A LITTLE EDUCATION AID—A. P. Heiner, Kaiser Steel Corp. official, presents a check for $2,000 to BYU Vice President William F. Edwards (center) as a part of the Kaiser program to aid higher education. Dr. Weldon J. Taylor, marketing department chairman, is an interested onlooker.

Kaiser Steel Presents $2,000 as BYU Fund Aid

A check for $2000 was presented to Brigham Young University by Kaiser Steel Corporation as part of its program of aid to higher education.

A. P. Heiner, vice president for public relations and traffic of Kaiser Steel Corporation, came from Oakland, Calif., to present the check to Dr. William F. Edwards, BYU vice president in charge of finance, and Dr. Weldon J. Taylor, chairman of the Marketing Department.

Heiner said the company's program is limited to private schools in the west whose activities are closely identified with interests of the company. BYU is the only school in Utah receiving a Kaiser donation.

The money was recommended for the engineering sciences at BYU but disposition of the fund was left to University officials. This is the first year of the program by Kaiser Corporation to assist higher education, and Heiner said it is expected to become annual.

In addition, the corporation also sponsors an alumni contribution matching program. Under this plan any employe can give to any college which he has attended and the corporation will match his gift dollar for dollar.

Kaiser operations in Utah include iron mines and coke ovens at Sunnyside, employing 850 persons. Production is a million and a quarter tons of coal a year.

3 Social Units Teaming Up For Assembly

"Five Dreams" is the theme of the Goldbricker, O S Trovata, Argonaut assembly Thursday.

The script, written by Norm Nielsen, Orem, and Beverly Broadbent, Riverside, Calif., is a series of five dreams, each revealing a different mood, from serious to witty to humorous.

Each scene is independent of the other scenes for its individual mood. These moods are created by rhythm patterns and music.

The production, directed by Nielsen, has no stars, chorus, or extra.

According to Miss Broadbent, the program will give the students "a chance to think as well as to be entertained. It is designed for those who are tired of the typical," she said.

Utah Movie 'Extra' Added as Feature Of Week's Classic

"This Is The Place," a short movie about Utah, will be an added attraction at this week's film classic.

The film, produced by Warner-Pathe News, and sponsored by Utah Oil Refining Co., will feature the "This Is The Place" monument, Mormon Temple and tabernacle in Salt Lake City as well as other scenic interest in Utah.

Regular feature of Thursday and Friday's film classic is "Carnegie Hall." Jan Peerce, Ezio Pinza, Rise Stevens, Jascha Heifetz, Harry James Arthur Rubenstein, Lily Pons, and Fritz Reiner are featured players in this production.

Film classics are sponsored by the BYU Audio-Visual Aids department and are shown every Thursday and Friday at 4-15 pm and 7 pm in rooms 167 and 261 McKay Building.

Freshmen interviews will be held the second week in November.

Faculty Hears President's Condition

The President's condition is "fairly good," and he is resting well. His condition is satisfactory for this stage of the illness; and he has shown improvement. He is receiving oxygen regularly to provide the heart and lungs as much rest as possible. Electrocardiograms are being taken periodically and they show no progressive damage.

This report of President Wilkinson was read to the Brigham Young University faculty in a special meeting Tuesday afternoon.

CALLED BY the university this was called for a two-fold purpose: to report on the illness of the president, and to explain how policies laid down by President Wilkinson are being carried out during his absence.

Presidents Taylor, Berrett and Edwards each spoke to the gathering.

Dr. Edwards stated that the three gather each morning at 8 to confer on the problems that President Wilkinson normally would solve.

THESE SESSIONS are being held so that nothing will be brought to the President's attention before he is ready unless absolutely necessary.

Pres. Taylor resolved that there would be nothing on Pres. Wilkinson's desk when he returns.

Dr. Berrett stated that the President had been advised to enter the hospital for a check of his heart. It was after his entry that the attack occurred.

"The last three years have been policy making years at BYU," Dr. Berrett said, "now is probably the best time for the President to be hospitalized. We should be thankful that it did not occur before this time."

HE COMMENTED on the "perfect harmony" among the presidency, and praised the cooperation of his fellow workers.

Pres. Taylor said in his two visits to the hospital Pres Wilkinson assured him that has absolute confidence that the university is in good hands.

Prof. Asonzo Morley suggested that a resolution be drawn up of the feeling of the faculty and be forwarded to Pres Wilkinson The Deans Council was given this assignment.

Letters to Leaders . . .

BYU Gov't Probe Begun

Systematic probe into the workings of the Brigham Young University studentbody government was begun Tuesday with letters of inquiry to student leaders.

Twenty-three letters were sent to students currently connected with Executive Council activities to determine lines of authority in the present governmental system, according to Gil Fairaolm of the investigating commission of the executive.

Fairholm also announced that ICE, composed of Dwayne Stevenson, Kirk Hart and Feirholm, has analyzed duties and responsibilities of the Executive Council in the present constitution and in the proposed studentbody constitution as drafted by the student Senate last year.

It was reported the analysis which lists individual duties of Executive Council members as well as those of the council itself, discloses no radical changes other than in the titles of four council members.

Secretary-historian post would be discontinued, with duties of preparing the studentbody historians for the year placed upon the entire Executive Council.

Four vice presidents, (1) cultural affairs, (2) social affairs, (3) school spirit and (4) finances, would replace the two present vice presidents, secretary-historian and business manager.

ICE, which was established by Studentbody President Monroe McKay after approval by the Senate, hopes to "investigate the existing conditions, and the responsibilities and assignments of the executive department with a view toward solidifying present conditions and recommending action to integrate said executive department.

Commission members are students in the university's Public Administration political science class.

Student leaders queered by ICE concerning their responsibilities, functions and level of authority included all members of the Executive Council, each class president, 11 Executive Council cabinet members and the editors of the Daily Universe, Banyan and Wye magazine.

Society Lauds BYU Professor, Confers Honorary Membership

Dr. M. Wells Jakeman, chairman of Brigham Young University archaeology department, has been honored with an honorary membership in the University Archaeological Society.

Founder of the society in 1949, Dr. Jakeman was released last month after seven years as president.

Founding the UAS with himself and seven students as charter members, Dr. Jakeman has seen the society grow in seven years until it now claims a membership of some 500 archeology enthusiasts located throughout the world—including 30 states in the United States and Mexico.

Dr. Jakeman was named chairman of the archeology department upon creation of the department in 1946.

According to an editorial in the UAS Newsletter lauding his achievements, Dr. Jakeman was instrumental in the purchase in 1946 by BYU of the "famous William Gates Collection of Early Middle American Literature."

"This famous collection," the editorial states, "is believed to contain 98 per cent of all known early manuscript in the native Indian languages of Mexico and Central America."

"Its assessor," the news letter continues, "gives BYU the opportunity of becoming one of the world's leading research centers in such problems as the decipherment of the Maya Hieroglyphics."

Dr. Jakeman is credited with securing the set collection and serving as agent for BYU in negotiating the purchase.

Purpose of the society is the study of the scriptural foundations of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the Book of Mormon.

Library Reserve To Enlarge Service Counter

The library staff is aware of the crowded conditions at the reserve window.

According to librarian Miss Naoma Rich, a counter is being constructed to enable another service area to the reserve room to be opened. Until this is completed, service will be given through the reserve room door during the busiest hours.

Miss Rich urges the students and faculty to keep in mind that the Grant Library was built when the studentbody numbered 1300. It is obvious that this build cannot provide adequate space for the present studentbody, she said.

Cooperation of the students is requested in using study space outside of the library when library materials are not needed. Room 212, McKay Building is equipped with tables and is reserved for study. Monday through Saturday, 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. Room 283 McKay Building is available Monday through Thursday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Other study areas will be announced soon

Something Old, Something New; Cats May Make Grizzlies Blue

With their offense honed to fine precision and wounds healed following a two-week lay-off, the Brigham Young University Cougars entrain Thursday evening for Missoula, Montana grid combat with the Grizzlies of Montana University.

According to Coach Kopp, his embattled band of gridders are hungry for victory at the expense of the Grizzlies. In an effort to take advantage of his being at full strength for the first time in week, Coach Kopp is planning to throw two platoons at the Grizzlies. This new wrinkle was successfully run at the frosh Wednesday in scrimmage.

The wily Cats have several tricks up their sleeves for the unsuspecting Montanans including the return of fullback Ron Jacobson to peak physical condition. Coach Kopp was also encouraged by the showing of Ralph Magliaccio in recent practices. Magliaccio, 187 pound halfback, has been hampered by injuries all year but should be in good shape for the Saturday contest. Coach Kopp is especially happy with the return of both Jacobson and Magliaccio for they are both power runners capable of keeping the Grizzlies honest on the defense.
